

Debra Meeks

◀ THE HISTORYMAKERS: Famed activist-professor Angela Davis (l) greets legendary husband-and-wife entertainers Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee during the recent the HistoryMakers "An Evening With Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee" tribute at the Art Institute of Chicago. Ms. Davis, a longtime friend and admirer of the celebrity couple, interviewed them about their history-making career and their more than 50 years of marriage during the salute, which will air next year on PBS-TV. Founded by Julieanna Richardson, the HistoryMakers is a national, non-profit organization dedicated to preserving Black history. Its goal is to archive 5,000 interviews with Black Americans who have made important contributions to our nation's history. The interviews are available online at www.thehistorymakers.com and will be available in museums and libraries.