I fell in love with [The HistoryMakers Digital Archive] once I began to explore it. I loved hearing the stories and I enjoyed the process of learning more about my personal family history by listening to the connected experiences of others. I have also learned a lot from my fellows. They have inspired some enhancement in my pedagogy as we process through application of the archive together.*”

2022-2023 Faculty Innovations in Pedagogy and Teaching Fellow

“The Innovations in Pedagogy Fellowship has helped fully integrate The HistoryMakers Digital Archive into the undergraduate course, Incarceration and Punishment...the fellowship also supported a re-design of the class...that centers the voices and lived experiences of African Americans.”

Steven Keener, Assistant Professor,
Department of Sociology, Social
Work and Anthropology; Director

“[The HistoryMakers Digital Archive] is a stellar example of African American dissemination when most of these stories were largely ignored or excluded in American history...[My students] were able to defend and to point out the necessity for preserving an accurate and inclusive record of American history. This meant that preconceived notions about African American culture were challenged.”
