Biographical Note by The HistoryMakers®

The Honorable DeLawrence Beard was born in Okolona, Arkansas, on December 26, 1937. Graduating from high school in 1956, Beard joined the Navy, and served until 1959, when he was honorably discharged. He then enrolled in the University of Missouri, where he received a B.A. in political science in 1964. Beard began law school at Missouri in 1964, but withdrew a year later. He would later go on to enter the University of Baltimore School of Law in 1967, earning a J.D. in 1970. In 1977, Beard graduated from the Georgetown University Law Center with an LL.M.

After earning his B.A., Beard joined IBM Corporation in Washington, D.C., where he was a senior marketing representative. Even after earning his law degree, Beard stayed on with IBM, finally going on to practice law in 1974. That year, he began as a prosecutor, first in juvenile court, and the next year, moving to felony cases. By 1978, Beard had moved to the position of senior assistant state's attorney for Montgomery County, Maryland, supervising a team of attorneys and prosecuting serious offenses. Continuing his climb, Beard became a judge in the District Court for Montgomery County in 1982, and in 1984 became an associate judge to the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Maryland, which is also the appellate court. In 1996, Beard advanced to the position of chief judge for the Sixth Judicial Circuit Court, where he remains today.

Beard is also currently an adjunct professor of law at both the University of Maryland and American University in Washington, D.C. He has lectured to incarcerated individuals, giving them advice on life skills. Beard is a member of several Bar Associations and has received a Governor's Citation in 1998 for meritorious service to the state of Maryland.

Beard is married to Lillian, a pediatrician.

DeLawrence Beard was born on December 26, 1937 to Derex Beard, Sr. and Gladys Cook Beard in Okolona, Arkansas. His father was born in 1911 to Lawson Beard and Mary Beard and his mother was born on June 26, 1918 to Willie Mae Cook and Sterling Cook. Both of his parents migrated to Kansas City, Missouri around 1938 and to St. Louis, Missouri in 1939, where Derex Beard, Sr. worked as a boiler maker and electrician for the Missouri Pacific Railroad. Beard has few memories of his grandparents, or of Okolona, but recalls his childhood in St. Louis, where he regularly attended the Saint Louis Art Museum, the Saint Louis Symphony Orchestra, the Saint Louis Zoo. He also talks about concerts by Cootie Williams, Count Basie, and Duke Ellington at the Kiel Auditorium. Beard's maternal great-aunt and great-uncle, as well as his maternal aunt and uncle, also moved from Okolona, Arkansas to St. Louis. Beard lived near the Lane Tabernacle C.M.E. Church.

DeLawrence Beard grew up in segregated central St. Louis and attended Cole Elementary School. When Beard was in sixth grade, his parents moved to the same neighborhood where the Shelley vs. Kraemer Supreme Court case originated, and where he attended Cote Brilliate Elementary school until 1952. Beard later attended Charles H. Sumner High School, one of three black high schools in St. Louis, where he learned about the Brown v. Board of Education decision in 1954. He also played basketball, listened to jazz music, worked at Mueller's grocery store, and began to notice the advancement of African Americans in sports and in the press. After graduating in January of 1956, Beard worked as a truck driver for a furrier, as a lathe operator for Remmert-Werner, and as a mechanic for McDonnell Aircraft. He enlisted in the U.S. Navy in August of 1957, and he trained at Naval Station Great Lakes and Naval Station Norfolk before being assigned to the Franklin D. Roosevelt CVA-42 aircraft carrier in the Mediterranean.
