Biographical Note by The HistoryMakers®

Reverend Mary Edith Ivey is an accomplished teacher and principal, government manager, and minister. Ivey was born in Vian, Oklahoma on February 9, 1937, the youngest of five children born to Boyd Henry, a barber and construction worker, and Lucy Henry, a domestic and homemaker. She prepared for a career as a teacher, earning her B.A. degree in 1959 from the College of Oklahoma. She taught for several years in Lawton, Oklahoma and then spent twelve years as an educator in the Kansas City, Missouri Public School System - serving as a teacher, student and family home-school coordinator, head teacher and assistant principal.

She attended graduate school at the University of Missouri and earned her M.A. degree in education from the University of Oklahoma.

In 1972, Ivey changed careers, becoming the Director of Program Evaluations for the Model Cities Program in the District of Columbia. She next served as Chief of Mental Health Planning for the District with her final government position being Chief of Long Range Planning for the District, before retiring in 1994.

Ivey prepared for the ministry by obtaining her Master's of Divinity degree in 2001 from Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington and her Ph.D. in divinity from Howard University. She was ordained into the gospel ministry at the historic Shiloh Baptist Church in Washington, D.C. and at the First Missionary Baptist Church in her home town of Vian, Okalahoma. She served as an Associate Minister at Shiloh Baptist before founding her own church—the non-denominational Church of God's Love. She is also the founder, President and CEO of Maine Avenue Ministries. Her dissertation for her Howard University divinity degree was published in 2006—entitled Care Giving and Love; Let's Overcome Violence Everywhere. Ivey's Maine Avenue Ministries, founded in 1999 in Washington, D.C. is an umbrella for the World of Spiritual Service Leadership Scholarship Awards Program, The Institute for Spirituality, Education and Health and Community Fellowship, the LOVE program (Let's Overcome Violence Everywhere), and the Long Term Advocacy Program.

Ivey is a widow—her husband, Monteria Ivey, who was an economist, passed away in 2002. She resides in Washington, D.C.

Ivey was interviewed by The HistoryMakers on November 9, 2006.

Reverend Dr. Mary Ivey was born February 9, 1937 in Vian, Oklahoma to Boyd Henry and Lucy Ballard Lacy. Ivey's paternal grandmother, Mary Henry, was a midwife who rented rooms to teachers, one of whom, Edith Jenkins, taught Ivey to read at three years old. Ivey's maternal grandparents, Henry Ballard and Johanna Ballard Irvin, owned thirty-five acres of land in Vian, where her grandmother sold health and beauty products from their home. Ivey's father was a construction worker and barber, while her mother worked as a domestic. They met and married in the segregated town of Vian, where they raised their five children, of which Ivey was the youngest. Their family home was the first in the area to have an electric stove and indoor plumbing. At a young age, Ivey possessed an entrepreneurial spirit, often picking vegetables to earn spending money. As a child, yet to form strong religious convictions, Ivey attended both Vian's Mt. Olive Baptist Church and a local Pentecostal church.

Reverend Dr. Mary Ivey initially attended the Douglas School in Vian, Oklahoma. In search of better employment opportunities, her parents relocated to Kansas City, Missouri, where Ivey attended R.T. Coles Vocational and Junior High School. Eventually, her parents separated, and Ivey returned to Vian with her mother, where she graduated from the Douglas School in 1954. As all her role models were teachers, like Edith Jenkins and Gussy Foreman Drew, Ivey wanted to teach, and majored in elementary education and business at the Oklahoma College for Women. In 1958, Ivey graduated, and obtained her first teaching position at the Dunbar School in Lawton, Oklahoma. She later earned a master's degree in education from University of Oklahoma in Norman, and returned to Kansas City to teach at Richardson Elementary School. There, Ivey became a home school coordinator, and was then promoted to assistant principal. Ivey later served as the principal of Kansas City's Booker T. Washington Elementary School.

Reverend Dr. Mary Ivey served on the board of the Opportunities Industrialization Center, through which she obtained a position at Washington, D.C.'s Model Cities program in 1972. Ivey went on to the city's Department of Human Services, serving as its director of long range planning; director of mental health; and special assistant to the health commissioner. While in Washington D.C., Ivey met her husband, Monteria Ivey, Sr.; and, after twenty-six years of social service, retired in 1994 to care for her mother and husband, who were ill. During this period, Ivey was called to the ministry. She preached her first sermon and was ordained at her family's church in Vian, Oklahoma. In 2001, Ivey completed a master's degree in divinity at Wesley Theological Seminary, where she founded Maine Avenue Ministries. She became an associate pastor of Washington, D.C.'s Shiloh Baptist Church, and earned a doctorate of divinity at Howard University. In 2006, Ivey published her dissertation as a book, 'Care Giving and Love.'

Seminary in Washington, D.C. Through the organization, Ivey awarded college scholarships, and initiated health programs with transplant surgeon Clive Callender. Ivey also established Let's Overcome Violence Everywhere (LOVE), a nonviolent social justice and education program, with sponsors like Eddie Bernice Johnson. Ivey went on to found the Church of God's Love, a nondenominational spiritual organization housed in Washington, D.C.'s XI Omega Alpha Kappa Alpha Center. In the 1980s, Ivey helped found the National Association of Minority Political Families USA to educate the community about political processes. Ivey also held leadership roles in such organizations as the Metropolitan Women's Democratic Club; Continental Societies, Inc.; and The Links, Incorporated. She concludes this part of the interview by reflecting upon her life, legacy and how she would like to be remembered.
