Video Oral History Interview with Larzette Hale-Wilson, Section A2008_056_001_001, TRT: 0:30:05 2008/03/17

Larzette Hale-Wilson was born on June 8, 1920 in Idabel, Oklahoma to Mary Henderson Golden and Thomas Golden. Hale-Wilson’s mother was raised by her uncle when her mother passed away. She valued education despite only reaching the eighth grade. When Hale-Wilson was ten years old, her father died, and her mother could not care for her and her sister so they were placed in an orphanage; but they all stayed in contact. Hale-Wilson worked her way through Langston University, where she met her first husband, William H. Hale, who later became the university’s president. In 1939, Hale-Wilson helped found the campus’ Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority chapter. She was later selected as treasurer of the sorority; and inspired by supreme basileus Edna Over Grey Campbell, she decided to run for higher office. She was elected supreme basileus in 1966, and established an investment fund, a travel scholarship and the Negro Heritage Brochure. She describes her leadership style; and talks about the problem of hazing in sororities.
